C. CONSULTATION DRAFT TO AMALGAMATE

THE ONTARIO SECURITIES COMMISSION AND

THE FINANCIAL SERVICES COMMISSION OF ONTARIO ..... 1

A. INTRODUCTION

Establishing a Single Financial Services Regulator: Consultation Draft is being circulated to solicit comments and suggestions on these legislative proposals involving the merger between the Ontario Securities Commission and the Financial Services Commission. While the draft sets out specific proposals, it is intended as a document for both the public and the government to work from and improve upon.

In dealing with new legislation of significance to a specific industry and to the public at large, it is important to take the opportunity to hear the views of those who would be affected by it. It is for this reason that the consultation draft is being made available for scrutiny and response.

Interested parties are invited to make written submissions by June 29, 2001 to:

John R. O'Toole, M.P.P.
Parliamentary Assistant to the Minister of Finance
7 Queen's Park Crescent
Frost Building South, 7th Floor
Toronto, Ontario
M7A 1Y7

Please note, all submissions received are subject to the access and privacy provisions of the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act. If for any reason you feel that your comments should not be shared with other parties, please indicate this in your covering letter.

Additional copies of the consultation draft may be obtained from the Ontario Government Bookstore, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. As well, the Consultation Draft is available on the Ministry of Finance website at www.gov.on.ca/FIN

B. DISCUSSION

1. Background and Consultation to Date

The 2000 Ontario Budget announced the merger of the Ontario Securities Commission (OSC) and the Financial Services Commission of Ontario (FSCO) into a single financial services regulator. That announcement reflects the government's direction to create an effective one-window regulatory process to improve consumer protection and to better serve the financial services sector and its clients.

A discussion paper, Improving Ontario's Financial Services Regulation: Establishing a Single Financial Services Regulator, was released for public comment in September, 2000. That paper provides the government's rationale for merging the OSC and FSCO. Many written submissions were received from consumers, investors, pension plan members, and industry participants in the financial services sector. As well, oral submissions were made by those who requested to do so, to David Young, formerly Parliamentary Assistant to the Minister of Finance.

While the majority of stakeholders endorsed the plan to merge the OSC and FSCO, many expressed a desire to see further details. The release of the Consultation Draft will allow those affected to scrutinize the draft legislation and to provide their comments and suggestions.

2. Summary of Proposals

Establishment and Amalgamation

The consultation draft would establish a new corporation to be known as the Ontario Financial Services Commission. Its purpose would be to plan and supervise the establishment of a single regulatory authority that would be responsible for the regulation of financial services in Ontario. The consultation draft also provides for the subsequent merger of this new corporation with FSCO and the OSC to form a single Commission that would keep the name of the newly established corporation.

Functions after Amalgamation

The new Commission would provide regulatory services with a view to protecting the public interest, protecting consumers of financial services and products, enhancing public confidence in the regulated sectors, and fostering a fair, efficient, and effective financial services marketplace.

The new Commission would provide co-ordinated regulation of:

- All market participants, as defined in the Securities Act including self-regulatory organizations such as the Toronto Stock Exchange and the Investment Dealers Association of Canada;
- All market participants, as defined in the Commodity Futures Act;
- All co-operative corporations to which the Co-operative Corporations Act applies;
- All credit unions, caisses populaires, and leagues to which the Credit Unions and Caisses Populaires Act, 1994 applies;
- All persons engaged in the business of insurance and governed by the Insurance Act;
- All persons carrying on the business of a loan corporation or a trust corporation and governed by the Loan and Trust Corporations Act;
- All persons carrying on business as mortgage brokers and governed by the Mortgage Brokers Act;
- All persons who establish or administer a pension plan or pension fund, as defined in the Pensions Benefits Act, and all employers or persons acting on their behalf who are required to contribute to any such pension plan or fund;
- All associations registered under the Prepaid Hospital and Medical Services Act.

It would also have responsibilities under the Marine Insurance Act, the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Act, and the Registered Insurance Brokers Act.

Members, Personnel and Duties

The consultation draft provides for the appointment of members of the Commission by the Lieutenant Governor in Council for a term not exceeding five years. The merged Commission would be governed by a board of up to 18 directors, and would include a Chair and up to three Vice-Chairs.

The Commission could assign its duties and powers, except for hearings. Duties could be assigned to members of the Commission, Superintendents, or to directors subject to terms and conditions.

The powers and duties of the Superintendent of Financial Services under the statutes currently administered by FSCO would be transferred to the new Commission. There would be a Superintendent of Pensions and a Superintendent of Insurance to carry out the regulatory duties for those sectors. There would be opportunities for hearings of Superintendent of Insurance actions before the Commission. The hearings under the Pension Benefits Act would be before a separately constituted Pension Tribunal. There would be the right to appeal the Commission's and Tribunal's decisions to the courts.

Financial Powers

The Commission's income would not form part of the Province of Ontario's Consolidated Revenue Fund. However, the Commission would have to pay any money it received to settle any enforcement proceedings into the Consolidated Revenue Fund, apart from money received by the Commission to reimburse it for costs or money that was designated for the benefit of third parties. The consultation draft sets out the Commission's proposed powers with respect to borrowing money and giving security.

The Commission could make rules respecting fees and assessments, including the amount or method of determining an assessment, the period to which an assessment is to relate, the persons to whom an assessment is to apply, the basis on which an assessment is to be allocated among those persons, and any other terms of an assessment.

No assessments would be payable by persons who are not subject to the statute under which the expenditures are assessed. In this way, there would be no cross-subsidization among regulated sectors.

Self-Regulatory Organizations

The Commission could recognize self-regulatory organizations if it was satisfied that this would be in the public interest. It could assign to self-regulatory organizations one or more of the duties and powers of the Commission, a Superintendent, or a Director, with respect to licensing, registration, or certification of persons included in a regulated sector. As well, requirements are set out respecting the appointment and duties of auditors of recognized self-regulatory organizations and their members.

Rule-making

The consultation draft provides for the making of rules and the adoption of policies. In both cases, public notice and comment would be required. A limited number of exceptions to the notice and comment requirement would be provided. The Minister of Finance would be given an opportunity to approve or reject a proposed rule or to return it to the Commission for further consideration. A rule would come into force only if the Minister approves it, or does not reject or return it within 90 days after the rule is delivered to the Minister.

The rule-making process is already provided for under the current Securities Act and Commodity Futures Act and no change is proposed to the subjects on which rules may be made under these Acts. However, the time period for actions by the Minister regarding a proposed rule would increase from 60 to 90 days. This increase would be necessary as a result of the expansion of rule-making to FSCO Acts, which could significantly broaden the subject matter and increase the number of rules that could be submitted to the Minister. Rule-making authority would be introduced for Acts currently administered by FSCO. This would give the new regulator greater ability to level the playing field and harmonize regulation across the financial services sectors where appropriate. As a general approach, any matter that is currently the subject of regulation-making powers would also be subject to rule-making. However, some important exceptions have been made. For example, the government would retain sole responsibility for making regulations, with no rule-making authority, over pension matters that deal with individual rights and entitlements and the statutory accident benefits delivered under automobile insurance policies. As well, the new Commission would not be able to make rules governing the Deposit Insurance Corporation of Ontario, an agency established under the Credit Unions and Caisses Populaires Act. If there were a conflict or an inconsistency between a rule and a regulation, the regulation prevails.

Investigations

The Commission or the Minister could commence investigations of matters relating to the administration or enforcement of Ontario financial services law, as well as matters dealing with the regulation of activities outside Ontario, that would be within the jurisdiction of the Commission if they occurred in Ontario.

An investigator could examine the affairs of any person including:

- any transactions, financial records, or other documents;
- any property or assets;
- any liabilities, debts, or undertakings;
- any relationship between the person under investigation and any other person.

The investigation powers contained in the consultation draft would be in addition to the compliance powers of the Commission under the statutes, regulations, and rules to be administered by the merged Commission.

Accountability and General

The consultation draft would require the Commission and the Minister of Finance to sign a memorandum of understanding within one year of the merger and every five years after that, setting out the roles and responsibilities of each party and their accountability relationship.

Annually the Commission would have to provide the Minister with its audited financial statements, together with a report on its affairs in the preceding fiscal year. The Minister would then be required to table these reports in the Legislature. As well, the Commission would have to publish a statement of priorities and anticipated expenditures for the next fiscal year. The Minister could designate a person to examine any financial or accounting procedures, activities, or practices of the Commission.

The Minister of Finance would have to appoint an advisory committee within three years of the merger and within each subsequent five-year period, to review the legislation under which the Commission operates.

The Commission would have to provide to the Minister and publish every agreement, memorandum of understanding, or arrangement that the Commission enters into.

The Minister would have 90 days to review agreements between the Commission and another securities or financial regulatory authority, any self-regulatory body or organization, or any jurisdiction. If the Minister neither approved nor rejected the memorandum, then it would come into effect on the last day of the 90-day period.

3. Consequential Amendments

The consultation draft provides for consequential amendments to the Acts currently administered by the OSC and FSCO. Many of these amendments are largely technical in nature and are necessary to provide consistency between the statute that would establish the new Commission and the individual statutes related to it. As well, these amendments set out in detail the matters over which the Commission could make rules and provide for the establishment of the Pension Tribunal. No rule-making is proposed under the Loan and Trust Corporations Act at this time, as proposed amendments arising from the July 1, 2001 sunset review of the legislation are being developed separately.

Commodity Futures Act

The provisions setting out the process for recognizing self-regulatory organizations are being repealed as these would now be dealt with by the new Commission. However, provisions dealing with the registration of commodity futures exchanges would remain in the Commodity Futures Act.

Compulsory Automobile Insurance Act

A Superintendent of Insurance (an employee appointed by the Commission) would perform most of the functions currently performed by the Superintendent of Financial Services as they relate to the Facility Association. The Commission would examine the affairs of the Association and report its findings to the Minister. The Commission would be given powers to make rules amending the Association's articles of association, by-laws, rules, and resolutions.

The government would retain sole authority to make regulations on other matters, for example, exempting old-order Mennonites from the Act.

Co-operative Corporations Act

The Minister would maintain a role with respect to the incorporation and amalgamation of co-operatives. The Minister could delegate his or her powers to a Ministry employee or agent or to the Commission. The Commission would perform the functions currently performed by the Superintendent of Financial Services, and it would have some new duties in the area of corporate governance, such as the approval of the corporate name of a co-operative and the issuance of certificates of amendment or restatement.

The Commission would have rule-making authority with respect to certain matters that are currently the subject of regulations. These matters would include rules governing offering statements, loans, shares, interest rates, and dividends, as well as the use of an electronic or computer-based system for the filing, delivery, deposit, inspection, storage, copying, recording, or service of documents or information.

Areas remain where there would be authority to make regulations with no concurrent rule-making power for the Commission. For example, regulations but not rules could be made with respect to articles of incorporation and worker co-operatives.

Credit Unions and Caisses Populaires Act, 1994

The Minister would maintain a role with respect to the incorporation and amalgamation of credit unions and caisses populaires. The Minister could delegate his or her powers to a Ministry employee or agent or to the Commission. The Commission would perform the functions currently performed by the Superintendent of Financial Services. Where there is a provision for a hearing, the hearing would be before the Commission (which could not assign its hearing duties). The Commission would examine the affairs of the Deposit Insurance Corporation of Ontario and report its findings to the Minister.

The Commission would have rule-making authority with respect to certain matters that are currently the subject of regulations. For example, the Commission would be able to make rules governing: the duties of the board of directors; the establishment of training programs; offering statements, loans, and shares; capital adequacy; disclosure of cost of borrowing; and the use of an electronic or computer-based system for the filing, delivery, deposit, inspection, storage, copying, recording, or service of documents or information.

On the other hand, some matters would only be subject to regulation-making authority in the Act with no concurrent rule-making for the Commission.

For example, regulations but not rules could be made with respect to matters affecting the Deposit Insurance Corporation of Ontario.

Financial Services Commission of Ontario Act

This Act would be repealed upon the amalgamation of the new Commission with the OSC and FSCO.

Insurance Act

A Superintendent of Insurance (an employee appointed by the Commission) would perform many of the functions currently performed by the Superintendent of Financial Services; for example, licensing of insurance companies, approval of automobile insurance policies, issuance of guidelines interpreting the Statutory Accident Benefits Schedule, and approval of automobile insurance rates. Where there is a right to appeal a Superintendent's decision or to a hearing on a notice of intention to take an action, the hearing would be before the Commission.

The advisory board hearing structure that currently deals with agent and adjuster issues would be replaced by a Superintendent's notice of proposal and a hearing before the Commission, with an opportunity to have representatives of the agent or adjuster and insurer hearing the matter along with the Commission member if the agent or adjuster so requests.

In addition to hearing matters that come before it as an appeal from a Superintendent's decision or as a Superintendent proposal or intention to take action, the Commission would have rule-making authority with respect to certain matters that are currently the subject of regulation. The Commission could make rules, for example: prescribing standards of practice and duties of agents and adjusters; governing segregated funds and variable insurance contracts; on disclosure of cost of borrowing; regarding the use of an electronic or computer-based system for the filing, delivery, deposit, inspection, storage, copying, recording, or service of documents or information.

Areas remain where there would be authority to make regulations with no concurrent rule-making power for the Commission. For example, regulations but not rules could be made with respect to access to tort (threshold issues) and no-fault benefits, as well as provisions governing the inspection of automobiles, determining the degree of fault where loss or damage to automobiles has occurred, and respecting the underwriting, classification, or rating of the automobile insurance product.

Mortgage Brokers Act

The Commission would perform the functions currently performed by the Superintendent of Financial Services. Where there is a provision for a hearing, the hearing would be before the Commission (which cannot assign its hearing duties).

The Commission would be given rule-making authority with respect to all matters under the Act where there is currently regulation-making authority. The Commission could make rules, for example, governing: the qualifications for the granting or renewal of registration of mortgage brokers; standards of practice for mortgage brokers; requirements for a prospectus; regarding the use of an electronic or computer-based system for the filing, delivery, deposit, inspection, storage, copying, recording, or service of documents or information. Rules could also be made that would govern disclosure of cost of borrowing.

Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Act

The Minister would maintain a role in defending claims of uninsured persons and authorizing payments out of the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund. The Minister could enter into an agreement with the Commission regulating the administration and enforcement of the Act by the Commission on behalf of the Minister. A Superintendent of Insurance (an employee appointed by the Commission) would approve forms under the Act, and would continue to be the named defendant where there is an unidentified driver. There would be no rule-making authority given to the Commission under this Act.

Pension Benefits Act

A Superintendent of Pensions (an employee appointed by the Commission) would make the regulatory decisions required by the Act. The Superintendent of Pensions would perform many of the functions currently performed by the Superintendent of Financial Services, for example: registering pension plans and amendments; approving forms, reports and asset transfers; ordering that insolvent plans be wound up; consenting to applications for a refund of contributions or payment of surplus to an employer; administering the Pension Benefits Guarantee Fund (PBGF); and authorizing payments to be made out of the PBGF.

Where there is a hearing on a notice of proposal, the hearing would be before the Pension Tribunal, which would be established under the Act. The Pension Tribunal would consist of up to 15 members and the members would be appointed by the government, three of whom would be members of the Commission. Decisions of the Pension Tribunal could be appealed to the court.

The Commission would have rule-making authority with respect to certain matters that are currently the subject of regulation. Matters over which the Commission could make rules include: specifying time periods and time limits; requiring reports to be submitted, and specifying the method of preparation, content, and persons by whom such reports must be prepared; specifying requirements with respect to the provision of investment options to members by pension plans that offer such options; specifying the rate of interest and method of calculating interest payable under the Act; regarding the use of an electronic or computer-based system for the filing, delivery, deposit, inspection, storage, copying, recording, or service of documents or information; respecting procedures governing establishment of advisory committees and appointment of members to pension committees and advisory committees.

It is important to note that areas remain where there would be authority to make regulations with no concurrent rule-making power for the Commission. There would be no rule-making for areas of substantive public policy such as: prescribing pension benefits that are not guaranteed by the PBGF; assessments for the purposes of the PBGF and classes of person who shall pay such assessments; prescribing methods of calculating the values of assets and liabilities of pension funds; and prescribing criteria that must be complied with before any surplus may be paid out of a pension fund.

Prepaid Hospital and Medical Services Act

A Superintendent of Insurance (an employee appointed by the Commission) would perform the functions currently performed by the Superintendent of Financial Services as they relate to associations registered under the Act. Where there is a right to appeal the Superintendent's decision, the hearing would be before the Commission (which cannot assign its hearing duties). There would be no rule-making authority given to the Commission under this Act.

Registered Insurance Brokers Act

The Commission would perform the functions currently performed by the Superintendent of Financial Services, for example: the Commission would have the "deemed interest" in the Registered Insurance Brokers Corporation and would examine the affairs of the Corporation and report its findings to the Minister. There would be no rule-making authority given to the Commission under this Act.

Securities Act

The consultation draft sets out the structure and powers of the new Commission. Consequently, the general provisions dealing with the structure of the Ontario Securities Commission and its powers would be repealed in the Securities Act. The repealed provisions include those setting out the composition and mandate of the Securities Commission, investigation powers, and accountability. Similarly, provisions dealing with the process for recognizing self-regulatory organizations would be repealed as the new Commission would have these powers, except for the recognition of stock exchanges, which would remain in the Securities Act.

The process for making rules and for the adoption of policies by the Ontario Securities Commission would be repealed as these powers would now be provided to the new Commission. The heads of authority with respect to which the new Commission may make rules would continue to be as set out in the Securities Act and no changes are proposed in this regard.

4. Conclusion

The financial services landscape in Canada has shifted over recent years. The pace of change is expected to continue and intensify, reflecting the needs of both consumers and business, customer demand for new products and services, and the advent of new information-based, electronic technologies, as well as global competition from specialized financial institutions and capital markets. The Consultation Draft encompasses these changes. It also emphasizes the importance of having an effective financial regulator which promotes a healthy environment for business activity, financial market integrity, and consumer, investor, and pension plan member confidence and protection.
